A Step Forward in Recovery

Wesley Family Services recognizes that a key element along the path towards rehabilitation and recovery for individuals with serious and persistent mental illness is forming social bonds and establishing a supportive network of social connections within their community. Such experiences are essential to the cognitive and behavioral change that underpins the recovery process for any person. One way to meet new people and form vital bonds is by participating in the activities at the Giving Tree Drop-In Center.

The Giving Tree

The Giving Tree Drop-in Center is a social, supportive and educational program that encourages its members to become independent, empowered and to advocate for themselves. Named by its members and synonymous with support, the Giving Tree Drop-in Center is a voluntary program - our members come because they choose to be part of what is going on here.
